FAQS FOR THE NEW MEMBER

How is a plan year defined for an Limited Purpose Flexible Spending Account (FSA)?

Limited Purpose FSAs have a start date and an end date, and the time in between is called the plan year. Expenses must be incurred during the plan year. Claim eligibility is based on date of service of the expense, regardless of when you are billed, charged, or when you paid for the service.

Can I change my election or stop contributing money to my Limited Purpose FSA at any time during the plan year?

IRS regulations state once you have enrolled in an Limited Purpose FSA, you cannot change your election amount unless you have a qualifying life event such as marriage, divorce, birth or adoption of a child, death of a spouse or child, or a change in your or your spouse's employment. You may not reduce your election to an amount less than either your year-to-date reimbursements or your year-to-date Limited Purpose FSA contributions. For more information on life events, please visit: www.roberthalfbenefits.com.

What is considered an eligible IRS-qualified expense under an Limited Purpose FSA?

Your Limited Purpose FSA funds are available only for certain IRS-qualified expenses, as described in your plan document. Such expenses may include:

- Dental care and orthodontia, such as fillings, X-rays, braces, caps, and mouth guards
- Vision care, including eyeglasses, contact lenses, solutions and supplies, and LASIK eye surgery
- Prescriptions and eligible over-the-counter items for dental and vision only.

May I use my Limited Purpose FSA to get reimbursed for IRS-qualified expenses my spouse or dependent children incur, even if they are not covered under my medical plan?

Yes, if these expenses are eligible under your Limited Purpose FSA.

Do my Limited Purpose FSA dollars expire?

Yes, if you don't use your Limited Purpose FSA dollars within the plan year, they will expire. Your plan offers a 90 day run-out period, which gives you extra time in the new plan year to file claims for expenses incurred in the previous plan year. Since your plan year ends on December 31, you have until March 31 of the following year to file claims. Your plan doesn't offer a Grace Period.

When can the Limited Purpose FSA be converted to FSA, and can I submit medical expenses?

The Limited Purpose FSA is initially available for use on dental, vision and preventative care expenses. But, once you certify that you have met the annual HSA minimum deductible, you may "convert" it to a regular Healthcare FSA and use it for other qualified medical expenses. To do so, you must complete and submit the HSA Bank Limited Purpose FSA Deductible verification form.

Does my Limited Purpose FSA have a Grace Period?

No. All expenses must occur before the end of the plan year.

If I am unable to use my debit card and must submit a claim online, through the mobile app, or postal service, what do I need to include?

In order to pay your claim, we need documentation showing provider or merchant name, patient's name, description of services/products, original date of service, and patient's portion of the charge. This can be through:

- The Explanation of Benefits (EOB) statement from your dental or vision plan.
- An itemized receipt or bill of service. Credit card receipts, canceled checks, and balance forward statements do not meet the requirements for acceptable documentation.
- A Medical Necessity Form completed by a vision or dental provider (required).
- HSA Bank will apply future claims reimbursement funds to any unsubstantiated claims until the claim is paid in full. Any claims that are unsubstantiated six months after the end of the plan year will be taxed.

Can I set up direct deposit for receiving my reimbursements?

Yes, you can receive your reimbursements more quickly by signing up online for direct deposit to your external, personal checking or savings account. On the Accounts tab, Banking/Cards page, click on "Add Bank Account", enter your bank account information, and click Submit.

How often are reimbursements made?

Claims are processed on a daily basis. Once your claim has been processed and approved, payment will be issued to you via check or direct deposit. If you elect to receive a check, please allow extra time for delivery through the postal service.
